The voters of Panaca held a fusion caucus in the school house Monday evening for the purpose of getting their prorate of the County officers. There was a good attendance. They decided to support Levi Syphus for Assemblyman, and Henry Mathews for Commissioner.

The Panaca Co-op Store has just received a large invoice of new goods. A large assortment of fancy dress goods. Mason Jars, etc. In fact everything required by the general public, from a paper of needles, to a thrashing machine. And our old friend Mr. C. P. Ransom is ever there to wait upon you.

It was at a quiet party, and Carl Hertz, the famous conjurer, had been delighting the company especially the ladies with many of his finest tricks. One of the parlor maids had been passing in and out with cups, cakes, glasses, and so on. She was much interested, and when the hostess gave a sign that nothing more was needed the girl still lingered on to see the complexion of the trick just begun. "Will some one oblige me with a heavy shawl or cloak?" he said. "Now, selecting a big cashmere shawl, 'you observe the thickness of the shawl?' They all did, breathlessly, including the maid. 'Now, will one of you be good enough to write a number of three figures on a piece of paper, being careful not to let me see what is written?' With trembling fingers one of the girls did so, while the maid at the door leaned forward and began to breathe hard. 'Now, place the written paper with the figures on the upper side under the shawl as I hold it.' It was done, the thickness of the shawl being between Carl Hertz and the paper as he looked down toward it. There was breathless silence. Then he said: Surely, the number is 761. It was. He had apparently been right through the thick shawl. Every one was dumfounded. Then upon the silence broke the shriek of the maid at the door. With one final gaze at the shawl and one at the handsome conjurer, she hid her rosy face in her hands, yelling at the top of her voice: 'What's the good of me clothes' and fled."

For District Attorney.

F. R. McNamee announces himself as a candidate for re-election to the office of District Attorney and ex-officio Superintendent of Public Schools.

Mr. McNamee has for the last term filled this office, and has done so in a manner that is above reproach or censure, by anyone. Has never neglected a duty in either branch of the office, has not lost a single case for the county as District Attorney, and has always had the well-fare of the schools in view.

The voters of Lincoln County cannot do better than to return him to the office, which he has filled so creditably for the last twenty months.

Weather Report.

The weather report issued from the Carson office on the 5th. inst. for the week ending August 30th. says of Lincoln County:

North portion, Several good showers during the week. Wheat and oats all in the stack, corn and potatoes doing well, corn about ready to cut. South portion-somewhat cooler. Heavy showers in the mountains caused floods in some localities. Third crop of lucern in the stack and fourth crop growing fast. Cotton in blossom and looks well.

A Pennsylvania paper has fallen against a discovery that will save the girls lots of money. The editor says that by tying sand paper to her ankles a girl can produce the same effect as by buying an expensive silk skirt. The pieces to sand paper rub together and sound like a $12 skirt. That would not work in Tuscorora as most of our girls are bow legged.

Senator Denton spent Thursday September 11th. in Reno and left for Carson on Friday. He is a delegate to the Democratic State Convention, and says: "If we want to whip the goldbugs all friends of silver should unite."

Loatie (aged seven, a little wiser)—Don't you know? It's cos they wants to make sure of findin' their mothers at home.

THE KILLING OF SEALS.

Wonderful Vitality and Desperate Courage shown by the Old Dog Hood.

Now, I had great opportunities of watching the young seals. Balls of snow-white fluff, these innocent-looking babies lie basking in their icy cradles, equally happy in sunshine or falling snow, sometimes for hours on their backs, flapping their flippers impatiently like fans, unable from sheer fat to get over again. In the coldest, stormiest season they grow fatter and fatter, so marvelously does nature provide for their necessities. Nor does she do less for the old seals. So thin that they sink at once if shot in the water in summer, as winter approaches they fatten and fatten up, till now they enjoy this terribly cold weather as we would a bath in summer. They dive in off the ice, paddle to and fro in the water, throw themselves on their backs and float, puffing out their chests and throwing showers of water over their upturned noses with foreflippers. Side stroke and break stroke, diving and sounding, they sport about, till one almost feels tempted to follow and share their rapturous pleasures.

The killing of the young seals has been frequently described as brutal and brutalizing, and the seal hunters depleted as savages. But, to my mind, the work is not nearly so brutalizing as the ordinary killing of sheep, pigs or oxen.

Here the animal is too young to feel fear, and evinces no sign of it; no animal is wounded and left to die in vain. The "crying" of young seals is not from fear, but hunger. One often hears them cry all night for their dams, while the cry never gives tongue at man's approach.

It is only in killing the old dog hood seals that one feels the savagery of killing anything, for the hood's marvelous vitality is only equalled by his pluck. I watched four men fight an old dog hood one day on a small pan. Reared up on his haunches, with his hood blown up, he awaited the attack. The first blow struck at his hood, might as well have struck a stone wall, while watching the second graff-end cleverly in his teeth, he shook its long handle to such good purpose that he cleared the pan of his enemies in an instant. Though he could at any moment have slipped off into the water, he would not do so, and soon a lucky blow under the jaw stretched him out. A perfect shower of blows on the head seemed to finish him off, and a heavy strap being placed around him, he was hauled to the bulwarks by the steam winch.

Just as he got there his immense weight broke it down, and he disappeared, we thought for good. But in a minute or so he suddenly appeared again, and, refreshed by the cold water, he climbed out on the very same pan, where the hunters were ungallant enough to return and dispatch him with their long knives. Nor does the hunter by any means have it all his own way. So agile and powerful are these beasts that they will jump clear out of the water into a pan six to ten feet high without touching the edge, when in no other way they could climb onto it, and many a man has been badly mauled and bitten and dragged into the water in endeavoring to capture the valiant old fellows.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

NOT DOING THE WORRYING.

Conditions Under Which a Partner Thinks He Ought to Put in More Capital.

"I have made a discovery," said Mr. Billtops, in the New York Sun, "and that is that there is likely to be some one person in a household that does all the worrying. There may be others that fret, and very likely fret over trifling things, but the real worrying over things that have got to be done and got to be looked after is usually done by one person. The person that does the worrying in my house is Mrs. Billtops. The children and myself and all hands lean on her and expect her to do everything. I don't know, but I sort of think that we expect her to provide things whether we have any money or not, and she certainly does seem to make everything come out all right somehow."

"Now, as a rule, among men, the man who does the worrying gets paid for it. He is usually the man at the head of an enterprise, or a concern, or department, or whatever it may be, who is able to do the work and willing to take the care and responsibility of it. Those under him may pile their cares up on him, and he shoulders them—many a man—easily. There are, thank goodness, plenty of men that don't shy at responsibility. "But these men get paid for what they do, and Mrs. Billtops does not, unless she counts my appreciation as something. The children don't realize what she does, they expect it. And as for me, the silent partner, if I don't stand up and take the knocks, I think I ought at least to put in more capital."

SWALLOWED A FIRE.

Finnegan Wanted His Internal Combustion Put Out as Quickly as Possible.

One of the first men to reach San Francisco with a hoard of Klondike gold was an Irishman named Finnegan, who had been very poor before he struck it rich, and who, consequently, was unfamiliar with many ordinary usages of a life of luxury, says Harper's Magazine.

"Oh say, yez kin bring me two dozen cysters," he said, airily, as he took a seat in one of the finest restaurants in "Frisco. The cysters were soon set before him, and Finnegan, looking about him for something to put on them, and hardly knowing what that something should be, spied a bottle of Tobasco and proceeded to season the bivalves not wisely but too well.

Impaling an oyster upon his fork, he thrust it into his mouth, then leaped to his feet with a terrific roar of pain and began dancing about and yelling like a madman.

"See here!" cried the proprietor, rushing to the table. "Keep still, or I'll put you out!" "P-put me out, is it? Oh wish you would put me out!" yelled Finnegan. "Me insides is blazin' like a match factory!"

The Scenic Route.

The traveler, tourist or business man is wise when he selects the Rio Grande Western Railway "Great Salt Lake Route" for his route to the East. It is the only trans-continental line passing directly through Salt Lake City, and in addition to the glimpse it affords of the Temple City, the Great Salt Lake and the picturesque Salt Lake and Utah Valleys, it offers the choice of three distinct routes through the mountains and the most magnificent scenery in the world. Double daily train service and through Pullman and Tourist sleeping cars to Denver, Omaha and Chicago. Monday Tuesday and Wednesday, of each week, Pullman Tourist cars are run to Bozeman via Chicago, without change. Trains leave Salt Lake at 8.45 a. m. and 7.40 p. m. daily.

For pamphlets descriptive of the "Great Salt Lake Route," write F. A. Wadleigh, General Passenger Agent, Salt Lake City.
